2014 Annual Report

Rising to the Challenge

By any measure, 2014 stands out as one of the best years in Englewood Hospital and Medical Center's 124-year history. We treated more patients than ever before and continued implementing a Modernization Program that has improved existing facilities and enhanced campus infrastructure. Perhaps our greatest achievement was being named a Leapfrog Group 2014 Top Hospital, an honor bestowed on fewer than 100 hospitals in the nation, for achieving the highest level of clinical excellence and patient safety.

We could not have accomplished a fraction of this without the support of the EHMC community. In 2014 alone, the EHMC Foundation raised in excess of $15,000,000. As our gifted doctors, nurses and staff provide compassionate, humanistic care, their work is made more effective by your generosity.

Inside of EHMC Foundation's 2014 Annual Report, you will meet philanthropists who rose to the challenge of supporting their Medical Center. Their reasons vary. One family gave to express their deep appreciation for a life-saving procedure. Another built upon a commitment to invest in their community. A physician decided to give back to the Medical Center that has provided consistent quality care to his patients. A local business chose to honor a life well-lived by helping others live longer, healthier lives.

On behalf of our Trustees, physicians, nurses, staff, volunteers and patients, we thank all who supported our important mission in 2014. Every day, we draw comfort and strength from your generosity.

“After we have the basics — a home and a car — it makes us feel good to take care of the community.” — Bruce Youngman

Leading by Example

“As I have become more established in my practice, I feel I have the resources to do more – to lead by example,” said Mark Sapienza, MD, describing how he was moved to join the Physician Partners program, which recognizes physicians who annually contribute $1,000 or more to the Foundation.

As EHMC’s Associate Chief of Gastroenterology and Secretary Treasurer of the EHMC Medical Staff, Dr. Sapienza seized the opportunity to ramp up his annual financial support of the EHMC Foundation. “The Medical Center has done a lot for the community and relies on the support of doctors and those who have the ability to give back,” said the board certified internist and gastroenterologist/hepatologist. “Each person should consider giving what they can, as they can,” he said, adding, “I want to help increase involvement among my peers.”

Dr. Sapienza’s commitment to EHMC began more than a dozen years ago, and has grown steadily stronger along with his commitment to give back to the Medical Center. Before choosing to join Englewood Endoscopic Associates in 2002, Dr. Sapienza weighed the pros and cons of a number of Bergen County practices. One of the deciding factors, he said, was the quality of the medical center to which the practice was attached. “Englewood Hospital and Medical Center knocked it out of the park.”

His administrative responsibilities have helped Dr. Sapienza to see the “big picture” at EHMC — an insight that has only served to confirm his first impression of the Medical Center. “Being involved and working closely with leadership and nursing has given me a real feel for what is going on; it lets me have my finger on the pulse,” he said. “It is an honor to represent the extraordinary medical staff of EHMC.”

Supporting EHMC to Honor a Life

For Retro Fitness of Tenafly, “rising to the challenge” is a way of life. Every day, the 12,000-square-foot gym is filled with motivated members changing their lives for the better. So it was no surprise when the organization beat its own personal best in philanthropic giving in 2014.

In 2013, Retro Fitness of Tenafly raised more than $7,000 for the EHMC Foundation — a generous sum for which the Foundation

Tenacious Giving

Bruce and Alice Youngman passionately rise to the philanthropic challenges of their community — and they always have. When they were raising their family in Demarest years ago, instead of Halloween candy, Alice put together small cash bundles of $1.50 each. She would leave instructions telling the trick-or-treaters to give 50 cents to a friend, give 50 cents to a charity and keep 50 cents for themselves.

Today, as loyal donors to the EHMC Foundation, the Youngmans still strive to generate the greatest possible impact from their giving. For example, Bruce leapt at the chance to answer a $10,000 challenge grant issued by the Community Chest at the September “Be Integrative” fundraiser to support the Center for Integrative Medicine. “When I heard about the challenge, I wanted to make sure it got done immediately,” he said. “It is the best way to double the impact of your giving”

Weeks after the “Be Integrative” event, Bruce made another donation to the Center for Integrative Medicine in recognition of the compassionate and understanding care Alice is receiving as she undergoes treatment for cancer. “The staff is wonderful — extremely understanding and capable. They do everything with a smile. I am very happy my wife chose to pursue her recovery at Englewood Hospital and Medical Center.”

Bruce humbly credits his own generosity to the example set by others. He says one of the best ways to inspire a donation is to make one yourself. “I often find myself supporting organizations that my dear friends have been involved with,” he said, describing how one family’s philanthropy inspires others to do the same. “You have to talk to people about supporting their community,” he said.

“I have been successful in my business,” said Bruce, who retired from a 48-year career in securities in 2004. “I hope I have

Meeting Crisis with Compassion

One night in November 2014, Srini Dhulipala invited EHMC President and CEO Warren Geller to his home, and personally handed him a generous contribution. When the men shook hands, Srini stood tall; his grip was firm. No one could have guessed that just a few months earlier he had been one false move away from total paralysis.

Srini's terrifying journey and amazing outcome started on vacation in Costa Rica. While swimming with his son, a wave flipped him, painfully, onto his head. Local doctors told him he had a muscle injury, but he had his doubts. By phone, his personal physician warned him, “Do not let anyone there touch your neck!” and advised him to get home A.S.A.P. As his pain steadily increased, and his arm began to go numb, Srini caught the earliest flight home.

Once back in New Jersey, an MRI confirmed everyone's fears: he had been walking around for four days with a broken neck.

An epidural hematoma was causing blood to put pressure on the spinal column. In effect, Srini Dhulipala's shattered neck was being held together by nothing but its own inflammation. “I was told I could go paraplegic at any moment,” said Srini.

His physician sent him directly to EHMC neurosurgeon Marc Arginteanu, MD, who recommended immediate surgery. When Srini asked about non-surgical options, Dr. Arginteanu assured him there was really no choice. “My injury was as severe as it gets,” said Srini, “and I was lucky the break had not yet paralyzed me.”

The procedure was a tremendous success. Srini said, “I owe my health to Dr. Arginteanu. Not only is he extremely capable, but he is just an amazing guy. When someone says ‘You may go paraplegic at any moment,’ you go into shock and do not know how to react. He softened the blow by being human and gentle. He had a way of saying, ‘Hey, man, I’ll take care of you. You’ll be OK.’ And I knew it would be OK.”

Srini was also fortunate to face the crisis with the support of his wife, Nancy, and their two children. Nancy said the staff at EHMC gave her courage. “Clearly, everyone was a tremendous contributor to the team,” she noted. “You could tell they had all worked closely together for a long time and had developed a cohesive relationship. That gave me a lot of confidence and made me comfortable Srini was in the best hands.”

A Chance to Give Back

Shortly after the surgery, Srini regained full mobility and — reflecting on his experience with the Medical Center — decided to take action, requesting a personal meeting with Warren Geller. “One of the unique perks of working at EHMC is the opportunity to learn about the incredible patient outcomes delivered daily by our clinicians,” shared Mr. Geller. “But a patient account like Mr. Dhulipala’s certainly stands as an extraordinary testament to the quality of care available at our Medical Center.” Their meeting concluded with Srini expressing his thanks and support by making his first philanthropic contribution to EHMC.

“Everyone deserves to be treated with the respect and care I was shown,” said Srini. “From the nurse who takes your swab to the doctor who meets you in the E.R., no one treats you like a number. They treat you like a proper human being and give you the care you need.”

“After all, I can really only fault Dr. Arginteanu for one thing,” Srini concluded, with a laugh. “My golf handicap has gone from a seven to an eight. Otherwise, he was amazing.”

“Each person should consider giving what they can, as they can. I want to help increase involvement among my peers.”

In 2013, Retro Fitness of Tenafly raised more than $7,000 for the EHMC Foundation — a generous sum for which the Foundation

was very grateful. Then, in the autumn of 2014, the gym hosted its first Infuse Life fundraiser, and the turnout was unprecedented. Of the 206 gifts received, 21 were for more than $1,000 and 15 came from community and corporate sponsors. In total, the 2014 Infuse Life campaign raised more than $100,000 for the EHMC Infusion Center.

Infuse Life, which is intended to become an annual event, was held in memory of Alyse Pinto. During the summer of 2006, Alyse was diagnosed with one of the rarest known forms of cancer. Although only about 250 people worldwide have goblet cell carcinoid — also known as appendix cancer — Alyse was never alone in her struggle. During her eight-year fight, she could always count on the support of her husband, Ron, children Brett, Brandon and Brittany, and countless dear friends including Stephanie and Scott Sosnik, the owners of Retro Fitness of Tenaflly. She also found a unique level of compassionate care at the Infusion Center at Englewood Hospital and Medical Center.

The Infusion Center became a place of comfort and refuge for Alyse. “Alyse truly appreciated the Medical Center, the staff and how well they treated her,” said Ron.

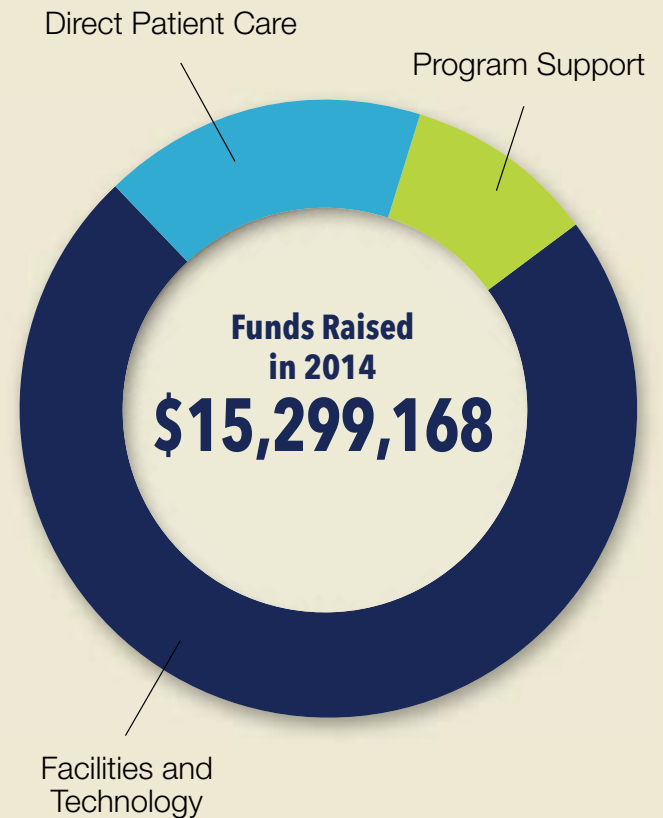

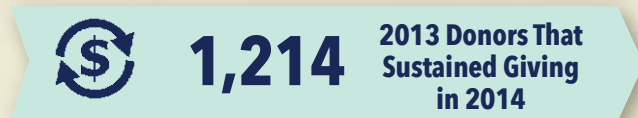

In February of 2014, Alyse died, leaving behind a legacy of optimism, kindness and a passion for living life with gusto. Before her passing, Alyse told her friends and family that she wanted to give back to EHMC in return for their kindness to her and to other patients like her. Honoring her wishes, her husband teamed up with the Sosniks to honor Alyse’s memory by raising funds for the Infusion Center. People rose to the challenge in inspiring numbers. Retro Fitness of Tenaflly had previously run a series of successful open house fundraisers to benefit The Heart and Vascular Institute and The Leslie Simon Breast Care and Cytodiagnosis Center at EHMC. “We want to be known as a company that gives back,” said Scott, who called the EHMC Foundation a natural partner for their altruism. “Health and fitness certainly seem to fit together,” he said.

“It was important to us to recognize a place where Alyse had been treated so exceptionally well,” said Ron. “The Medical Center is very important to the area. It is a good cause. She would be very happy.”
